Dear Capgemini recruitment team.

I am writing to apply for the Capgemini Graduate Program, with a strong interest in Full-Stack Development Consulting. My background in Computer and Information Science, majoring in Software Development, has equipped me with the problem-solving skills needed to design and implement solutions.

During my studies, I gained hands-on experience in developing applications, working with databases, and applying agile methodologies in project work. I often enjoy solving complex problems and collaborating with teams to deliver solutions that are both user-focused and technically based. These experiences make me confident in my ability to contribute to Capgemini's projects.

I am drawn to Capgemini not only because of its reputation, but also because of its values of collaboration, and sustainability. The opportunity to grow within a diverse global community while working on real-world projects matches perfectly with my career goals and personal values.

I am open to working in any of your Australian locations and am able to start from November 2025. I currently hold New Zealand citizenship.

Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the possibility of contributing to Capgemini's vision of helping organisations unlock the value of technology and build a more sustainable and inclusive world.

Kind regards,

Ali Habibi
